

"On behalf of the community of Carson City, let me invite you to enjoy our many amenities that make this City a destination like none other."

Founded in 1858, Carson City serves as the Capital of the great state of Nevada, home to the three branches of government and five constitutional officers, including the Governor. Part of the Great Basin, the City is host to a diverse landscape, with the shores of Lake Tahoe just beyond the Carson Range to the west, and the Carson River and high desert to the east. With a community of around 56,000 residents, there is an abundant parks system with over 8,000-acres of parks, trails and open space—more parks per capita than the national average. As one of Northern Nevada's premier outdoor recreation destinations, the City's nationally recognized trail system is unique due to its dramatic topography and breathtaking views.

We also boast many hotels designed to make your stay more enjoyable at affordable prices. As you might expect, we are proud of our rich history. We are home to the Nevada State Museum which served as a United States Mint. For history buffs and families alike you will find a treasure trove of artifacts from Nevada documenting our state's history as well as guided tours designed to enhance your understanding of that history. Or, if you like railroads, take a tour of the Nevada State Railroad Museum next to the Chamber Of Commerce or enjoy a 15-mile ride on V&T Railway from Carson City to Virginia City.

Like to ski? We are in the epicenter of any number of ski resorts within 30 minutes to an hour offering varied terrain for both the pros and family skiers.

We also hope that you would partake of the many restaurants and shops in our revitalized urban core area. Designed and built according to the complete streets concept, it offers wide landscaped sidewalks, bike lanes and plenty of places to sit and relax.

We are one community in Carson City—not just a collection of neighborhoods—committed to creating a sustainable community for the 21st century but cognizant of our past and its importance to who we are today. In Carson City you will find a community where the residents are friendly and willing to give you a hand should you need one. With pride, we invite you to share in a bit of the lifestyle that we get to enjoy every day of the year.

LEGENDS OF THE CAPITOL

Tour guide and history buff shares the hidden history of the Nevada State Capitol Building

When walking through the historic Nevada State Capitol Building's stately halls, visitors will encounter legends of Nevada's past. They may even get a chance to meet with the state's current leaders. "The governor is here all the time," says Woodrow Davis, a volunteer who has guided tours of the Capitol for about 14 years. "When I did a tour this morning he came out and visited the children." Davis, one of the two most senior tour guides with the Friends of the Nevada State Museum, decided to become a docent in part due to his love of history. "You really can't do this job unless you're a history buff," Davis says. During his time on the job, Davis' knowledge of Nevada and its Capitol, has multiplied. Here are four hidden historical tales he likes to share with groups of all ages who visit the building.

Don't Fence Me In ... Except This Once

While Nevada's "Don't Fence Me In" spirit is celebrated throughout the state, Nevada's Capitol does have a fence around it with a surprising story. "This building was in the middle of a cow pasture," Davis says. "A woman walked into the governor's office one day, slammed her hand down on his desk and said, 'You have to do something about these cows! Our long dresses are getting soiled. Now you'll get a fence ground here.' One week later, it is said he put a bid out for a fence." The contract went to H.K. Clapp—a woman named Hannah Clapp, who founded one of the state's first private, co-educational schools, the Sierra Seminary. "Back then, you didn't give women contracts like that," Davis says. "But she got the contract."

Oh Christmas Tree, Oh Christmas Tree

Located on the Capitol grounds, Nevada's state Christmas tree is the largest in the country at more than 110 feet tall. For comparison's sake, the next tallest official state Christmas tree is in Iowa, and it's 65 feet tall. George Washington Gale Ferris Sr., the father of the man who invented the Ferris wheel, planted the tree in 1876.

Prison Accomplished

The Capitol building weighs about 19 million pounds and was built between 1870 and 1871 by local building contractor Peter Cavanaugh. The two-story, classical revival building with elements of Renaissance Revival and Italianate is primarily constructed of sandstone quarried by the prisoners at the Nevada State Prison, just outside of downtown Carson City.

Hands-on History

See the wheel of the battleship USS Nevada, the wine glasses used to toast the state's entry into the union, the boxing glove from the famous Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson match, and more in the new Battle Born Hall. Located in the former Senate Chambers on the second floor of the Capitol, the 2,000-square-foot space includes five exhibit areas that lead visitors on a tour of Nevada's history. "It's very interactive for the kids," Davis says.

Visit the Capitol

The historic grounds and building are open and accessible almost every day, even on Saturdays. More than 130 years after its construction, the Nevada State Capitol Building is still actively used and open to all.

"You can come in here anytime," says Woodrow Davis, a volunteer tour guide. "This is Nevada, after all." The building is open to the public Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Free one-hour guided tours by docents from the Nevada State Museum take place at 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. every Saturday and include the exterior of the building, nearby memorials and the interior of the building.

FROM MAMMOTH TO MINT

Nevada State Museum and former US Mint house key artifacts from the state's history

Where can you see the world's largest exhibited Columbian Mammoth and an 1869 coin press still in action today? At the Nevada State Museum in Carson City.

"When you visit the museum and the mint, you can explore Nevada's history from prehistoric to the present day, all in one trip," says Myron Freedman, the Museum's director

Pressed Into History

The Museum's building, the former United States Mint building, is a historical experience all on its own. Built at the peak of the silver boom in the 1800s, the Carson City Mint minted coins from silver discovered in the Comstock Lode in nearby Virginia City.

"The country was growing in the 1860s, and the services the government could provide were stretched the further you got away from the East coast," Freedman says. "So, getting coins, actual money into the hands of the populace was not that easy."

Over its lifetime, the mint produced nearly $50 million face value worth of gold and silver coins.

"The mint's history is pretty fascinating," Freedman says. "The circumstances in which it was created were really unique to Nevada and the resources that were here. The mint is a huge part of that history and the nation's history."

This year, the Museum will celebrate the 150th anniversary of when Coin Press No. 1 issued its first coin. Between 1870 and 1975, the press minted nearly every type of coin, from coins of the late 1800s to modern pennies, nickels and dimes.

When you visit the museum and the mint, you can explore Nevada's history from prehistoric to the present day, all in one trip."

Today, it is the only coin press of its time still known to be operating, producing commemorative medallions for museum visitors, special occasions and numerous historical organizations.

To celebrate Coin Press No. 1's sesquicentennial, the Museum will host many special events in February and visitors will be able to mint their own coins by purchasing a planchet silver blank. For more information, visit mint150.com.

Curator Bob Nylen talks about his 34 years at the Nevada State Museum in Carson City, NV.

Mining the Past

Throughout the year, the Nevada State Museum holds 17 galleries and unique displays, many of which are interactive.

Its natural history section features animals from the bones of a prehistoric mammoth found in the Black Rock Desert to an ichthyosaur, which swam the waters of ancient Lake Lahontan. "It's an unusual collection that preserves the story of these animals," Freedman says.

The "Under One Sky" exhibit tells the story of Nevada's first inhabitants through 10,000 year-old artifacts and presents American Indian culture from the perspective of American Indians, in their own words. "That exhibit was developed in partnership with Native American groups," Freedman says. "It's pretty unique, and it tells an important story."

The Museum also includes a replica of a mining town and an underground mine.

"The mining exhibit is one of the most popular exhibits we have," Freedman says. "It was developed in the 1950s by engineers and the mining industry. If you were able to go underground and see the mines during the Comstock, this is what you would have seen. Most people feel like they are in an actual mine."

Explore the rich history of railroads in the West while visiting Carson City

When transcontinental rail service began in Nevada in 1869, it also began a new era for the state, and the West.

"Before the railroads, people cried when they left their families on the East Coast because it was probably the last time they would ever see them," says Daniel Thielen, the director of the Nevada State Railroad Museum. "Then, railroads came and fundamentally changed the human machine."

This seismic shift in transportation is well documented and preserved through several museums, exhibits and experiences in Carson City: the Nevada State Railroad Museum, the V&T Railway and the Carson & Mills Park Railroad.

Park and Ride

For a train experience in the middle of Carson City, check out the Carson & Mills Park Railroad located in Mills Park. On summer weekends, the volunteer-driven Carson City Railroad Association offers rides on a 2-foot gauge riding railroad. Inside the adjacent depot, check out the scale model railroads that are open for public viewing whenever the train is running. For more information, visit carsoncityrailroadassociation.org.

Moving History

At the Nevada State Railroad Museum, visitors can learn about Nevada's railroad history through its collection of locomotives, artifacts, photographs and memorabilia. "It's probably the best 19th-century railroad collection on the planet," Thielen says.

Next, visitors can experience steam or early gasoline railroad technology by riding in one of the trains at the museum. Listed as a National Historic Landmark, the museum's gasoline-powered 1910 McKeen Motor Car is the only surviving example of its kind in the United States. The museum also offers rides on a 401 Edwards Motor Car, built in 1926, and a steam train. Trips take about 25 minutes. For a list of timetables, visit carsonrailroadmuseum.org/2020-timetable.

To get a more complete railroad experience, Thielen recommends hopping on the V&T Railway. "Railroading in Northern Nevada is not complete without a trip to a museum, nor is it complete without a trip to the V&T Railway," he says. "If you want to learn about railroading, we can immerse you in it."

Through the Mountains

From May through October, the V&T Railway takes passengers on a 24-mile, round-trip ride between Carson City and famed Virginia City. In November and December, the Polar Express comes alive on the V&T for a one-hour ride.

While riding on the V&T Railway, passengers can experience a bit of what Nevada was like 150 years ago. "You're on a time machine," Thielen says. "You can get the sights, the smells, the feels, all the senses into one. You can appreciate what it took to survive in Nevada."

For more information, visit vtrailway.com.

KIT CARSON TRAIL

The Kit Carson Trail is a 2 1/2 mile walking or driving path in Carson City's Historic West Side neighborhood. It features over 40 stops at landmarks including 1800s-era Victorian-style homes, museums, and churches. The 25 landmarks featured here are an abbreviated walk highlighting the most famous stops on the trail that tell the storied history of Carson City. To pick up the detailed map with over 40 stops, please stop at at our Visitors Center located at 716 N. Carson Street.

Nevada State Museum-Old Mint (1869)

600 N. Carson St.

The Mint was created in 1863, but not put into operation until 1870, at the peak of the silver boom. More than $49 million worth of silver and gold coins bearing the famous CC mark was coined here until the mint was shut down in 1893. It became the Nevada State Museum in 1939, a must see attraction in Carson City.

Named for second owner (1869), a key figure in the V&T Railroad (1863).

Stewart House (1887) 503 W. Robinson St.

U.S. Senator William Stewart purchased this house in 1886; he took the lead in the passage of the National mining law in 1866 and wrote the Fifteenth Amendment.

Gov. John E. Jones House (1862)

603 W. Robinson St.

Former Gov. John E. Jones built this home and lived in it during his term as Governor in 1895-96. Its unique Stick/Eastlake ornamental design makes it one of Carson City's unique homes.

Louis Prang House (1864) 611 W. Robinson St.

Louis Prang was known as the "Father of the American Christmas Card" after creating the first painting-like prints for the general public. An example of his work is on display in front of the home.

Bliss Mansion (1879) 608 Elizabeth St.

Duane L. Bliss built this house in 1879 with clear sugar pine and cedar from his Lake Tahoe mill. Over 8,000 sq. ft. with 15 rooms and 9 marble fireplaces, it was the largest home in the state in its time.

Governor's Mansion (1909) 606 N. Mountain St.

The land was sold for just $10 by Mrs. T.B. Rickey. George A. Ferris, a Reno architect, designed the mansion with Classical Revival features and Georgian and Jeffersonian motifs. The construction bid was awarded for $22,700.

Rickey House (1870)

512 N. Mountain St.

T.B. Rickey founded the State Bank and Trust Company. Mrs. Rickey waited till her husband was out of town before offering the property to the north for a Governor's Mansion. The positive support from the community made it impossible for Mr. Rickey to renege on the donation.

Krebs-Peterson House (1914)

500 N. Mountain St.

The Krebs-Peterson home was chosen to be the boardinghouse for John Wayne in his last days as a dying gunfighter in "The Shootist." The filming began in January, 1976. Dr. Krebs achieved international fame in halting the influenza epidemic using sacred herbs from a local Native-American tribe.

St. Teresa of Avila Catholic Church (1871)

511 W. King St.

It was originally much smaller and constructed out of wood, but it was expanded and faced with brick around 1949. It now houses the Brewery Arts Center performance hall.

Stewart-Nye Residence (1860)

108 N Minnesota St.

This is one of Carson Citu's oldest homes; it was built prior to 1862 of native sandstone for William M. Stewart, Nevada's first US Senator.

Edwards House (1883)

204 N. Minnesota St.

Thomas J. Edwards built this house in 1883. Erroneous accounts suggested Edwards constructed the house with state prison labor and was forced to resign his office as county clerk. The story about the use of prison labor is a very popular legend; evidence clearly shows there was no scandal associated with the construction of the home.

Orion Clemens House (1864)

502 N. Division St.

Orion Clemens, Nevada's first territorial secretary brought his younger brother from Tennessee, whom later became a prolific writer by the name of Mark Twain.

St. Peters Church (1862)

302 N. Division St.

Built in 1867-68 at a cost of $5,500. The structure is an exceptionally fine rendition of Gothic revival style used widely in the 19th century. On the National Register of Historic Places.

Dat So La Lee Home-Cohn House

331 W. Proctor St.

The Dat So La Lee house is a one-story cottage built around 1914, located to the east of Abe and Amy Cohn's house. This was the home of Louisa Keyser, a Washoe Indian basket weaver, famed for her excellent basket work. She was also known as Datsolalee, her Washoe name, which means "big around the middle or big hips."

United Methodist Church (1865)

200 N. Division St.

In 1958, the Methodist Episcopal Society bought lots on Division Street for $25 and pair of boots. Rev. Nims labored almost single-handedly for 3 years to haul sandstone blocks from the State Prison where prisoners guarried and squared the stone to lay them at the site of the church, which he dedicated in 1866.

Carson Brewing Company (1865)

449 W. King St.

Home of "Tahoe Beer" for over a century, now the Brewery Arts Center (1864). What seems to have been Nevada's first brewery was established by John Wagner & Company in 1860 during the rush to Virginia City. The brewery specialized in steam beer, a bottom-fermenting brew produced without the constant cold temperatures that true lager requires. The pure, clear water used in the brewing process came from King's Canyon Creek.

Ferris House (1869)

311 W. 3rd St.

Family tradition believed that George Washington Gale Ferris, Jr. came up with the idea for the Ferris wheel from his early days in Nevada, when he watched the big wheel turning near the Mexican mill on the Carson River.

First Presbyterian Church (1864)

100 N. Nevada St.

The First Presbyterian Church was completed in 1864. The brick edifice is considered to be the oldest Presbyterian Church in service in Nevada.

Olcovich Meyers House (1874-75)

214 W. King St.

The house was built by Joseph Olcovich in 1874-1875. The Olcovich brothers were prominent members of the Jewish community and owned extensive commercial property in Carson City.

Abraham Curry House (1871)

406 N. Nevada St.

A founding father of Carson City who held prominent titles such as: Warden and contractor for the Nevada Territorial Prison, Territorial Assemblyman, Territorial Senator, Ormsby County Surveyor, and Superintendent of U.S.

Brougher Bath Mansion (1903-04)

204 W. Spear St.

Wilson Brougher "struck it rich" in the Tonopah boom in 1901 and came to Carson City when he purchased the Arlington Hotel located on North Carson Street. He built his home in 1903-1904 immediately behind the hotel and the mansion is named for him.

Rinckel House (1876)

102 N. Curry St.

The Rinckel Mansion has been a setting for movies and served as a restaurant as well as a wedding chapel for a number of years. In 1941, Paramount Pictures used the Rinckel mansion as the backdrop in one of its scenes for the movie, "The Remarkable Andrew."

E.D. Sweeny Building (1860)

102 S. Curry St.

This is one of the earliest commercial buildings in Carson City, and one of the few brick buildings remaining from the City's earliest years. The house was built in approximately 1859-1860 by builder Peter Cavanaugh, who also constructed the Nevada State Capitol building in 1870.

St. Charles-Muller Hotel (1862)

302 S. Carson St.

Constructed in 1862, one of the first hotels in Carson City, was also one of the state's most elegant and became the main stage stop in Carson City. It consists of two utilitarian buildings, a two-story one on the south and a three-story one on the north, each with Italianate details. It was one of the most elegant hotels of the day.

OUTDOORS

Explore some of Carson City's top trails through the eyes of local experts

Nestled at the foot of Nevada's Eastern Sierra mountain range, Carson City affords visitors access to many scenic hiking, biking, ATVing or OHVing trails. From expert treks to beginner rides, there's a trail out there for everyone. The trick is finding the right one, and there's no one better to ask than a local.

For hiking and biking trails, we chatted with Pete Doenges, a director with Muscle Powered, a Carson City organization that promotes creating a pedestrian-and-bicycle-friendly infrastructure by maintaining and developing trails and resources.

"I am a passionate hiker and somewhat of a trail builder," Doenges says. "So when I arrived here in Carson, I was drawn to this activity and to the stick-to-itiveness of the people who would guide the hiking, trail building and biking activities in the group."

For off-roading exploration, we reached out to David Clemenson, who helped create the popular Rock Crawlers & Brews event.

"I'm a big off-road enthusiast when it comes to vehicles and rock crawling," Clemenson says.

Here are a variety of "can't miss" trails recommended by locals for all tread styles and levels.

Ash Canyon to Kings Canyon Trail

Types of Activities: Hiking, Biking, EquestrianDistance: 14.8 miles (7.4 miles one way)

Thanks to partnerships and the hard work of many volunteers, the Ash to Kings trail is the flagship trail in Carson City. It features well-built miles of smooth, twisting single-track that connects two scenic Carson City canyons. Hikers and bikers are welcome to access the trail from either canyon. After 2,000 feet in elevation gain, traversers will be rewarded with views of Washoe Lake, Carson River Canyon, The Sierra Nevada Mountains and the valley floor. Crossing a diverse range of trail environments, Ash to Kings crosses two bridges, one of which goes over a waterfall.

"It has a fabulous array of different hiking and biking challenges," Doenges says. This trail is open to hikers and mountain bikers. Dogs are welcome.

Parking is available at each end of the trail, so bring a friend if you want to go just one way for approximately 7 miles.

Wild Horse Trail

Types of Activities: Hiking, Biking, EquestrianDistance: 1.5 miles

The Wild Horse Trail is a three-quarter mile long trail accessible from the northern end of the softball field's east parking lot at Centennial Park. The trail provides access to other trails on Bureau of Land Management lands north of Centennial Park, and it connects with an existing road and trail, creating a 1.5-mile loop.

True to its namesake, hikers, mountain bikers and equestrians will almost always see wild horses from this trail that has great views of Carson City.

"It was exciting to go up there and hike, bike or build because we had wild horses all over the place," Doenges says.

Completed in 2018 with the help of Muscle Powered, this trail is the culmination of a Carson High School senior project by former student Conner McRae.

Wild horses are fascinating to observe, but do not approach them; they are wild, and they can be dangerous.

Kings Canyon waterfall

There's a huge trail system out there, and that's just wide open."

Prison Hill Loop

Types of Activities: Hiking, Biking, EquestrianDistance: 5.6 miles

Prison Hill is one of the premier hiking and trail running areas in Northern Nevada. The name is no coincidence—there are two prisons next to the mountain: one on the northwest side, and one on the southwest side. Bordered by the Carson River on the east and offers stunning views of the valleys to the west, Prison Hill rises to 5,724 feet and has spectacular views in all directions.

"One of my favorite hikes around here is North loop," Doenges says. "When you get up into this area of the city, you can look off at the Sierra in one direction and the beautiful Greenbelt of the Carson River off to the east. I'd highly recommend that if people enjoy the desert aesthetic. If you slow down and focus on being present and aware and tuned in, there's a whole thriving kind of life in the desert."

Prison Hill Recreational Area

Types of Activities: Motorcycle, ATV, UTV

This 2,500-acre natural recreation area offers trails for motorized use on its southern end. There, OHV enthusiasts will find several loops throughout the area and a large staging area for parking.

"You've got all kinds of different smaller trails that can be good for dirt bikes, quads, ATVs, UTVs or rock crawlers," Clemenson says. "There's a wide variety of technical levels from mild to wild."

The area is also undergoing a revitalization and receiving improvements such as designated routes, signs and maps. The project is expected to be completed in 2021. It will include staging area improvements, a new kiosk, toilets, quality trails, a Tot Lot, beginner area, rock crawl and trial areas, and a developed Summit Loop.

Pine Nut Mountains

Types of Activities: Motorcycle, ATV, UTV

In the Pine Nut Mountains, riders will find almost 100,000 acres of BLM land, with many trails available to OHV use. The topography of the Pine Nut Mountains ranges from rolling hills to peaks topping 9,000 feet.

GOLF

FAIRWAY FUN

Great greens, wallet-friendly rounds and rich history — whether you're a golf enthusiast or new to the turf, Carson City boasts several quality courses with picturesque greens that are sure to please amateurs and enthusiasts alike.

At all of these golf courses, you have the opportunity to play while experiencing the mesmerizing views northern Nevada has to offer.

Carson City presents a variety of un-FOREgettable experiences (see what we did there?) within easy driving distance and simpler courses for families and beginners. Even at the height of the summer tourist season, Carson City golf courses are tranquil places to spend the day.

There's no bad choice when selecting a course. Whether you opt for the Comstock/River or Sierra/Comstock at Empire Ranch Golf Course, East or West at Eagle Valley Golf Course, or Silver Oak Golf Course, you're bound to have a fun-filled day in one of the nation's most historically rich capitals.

The Empire Ranch Golf Course offers options for both beginners and pro golfers with 27 holes that overlook the Carson River. On the other hand, the Eagle Valley (East and West both with 18 holes) and Empire Ranch (Comstock/River and Sierra/Comstock) golf courses are divided up into regions offering a variety of choices depending on experience.

One fairway stands out — the Cadillac Ranch Driving Range at Silver Oak Golf Course. With its inspired approach, the course features buried vintage cars collected since 1974 and hand-painted by students from Doral Academy Red Rock. The art on the cars at the range was inspired by Carson City's deep arts and culture history. There's also the addition of a 'Vegas Strong' dedication car in memory of the 58 victims lost at the Route 91 Harvest Festival in 2017.

Simply put, Carson City is the best-kept secret for recreational golf in the West with its unbeatable prices and mesmerizing scenic backdrop.

After a round, swap your golf shoes for hiking boots and head to one of Carson City's many scenic hiking trails. Carson City's boundaries go all the way to the eastern shore of Lake Tahoe. Hikers can access the Carson River, three backcountry lakes multiple mountain peaks, and some unspoiled shoreline along Lake Tahoe. To pick the right trail, check out visitcarsoncity.com/hiking.

Finish off the day with a journey through time on the Kit Carson trail, a walking path through Carson City's historic district. It features stops, including 1800s-era Victorian-style homes, museums and churches. To pick up a printed map, go to the Carson City Visitors Center at 716 N. Carson Street.

Winter Dreams

To begin a Carson Triple in the winter, take a brisk hike on the valley floor. An excellent choice is a mile-long loop that winds along a portion of the Carson River at Riverview Park. Or, check out Longview Ranch, where 1.9 miles of paved paths connect with a part of the old V&T Railroad.

Then, head up to Lake Tahoe and enjoy your choice of snow sport. From skiing or snowboarding to snowshoeing or cross-country skiing, the alpine lake's world-class resorts offer it all. And, it's all a short drive from Carson City.

At the end of the day, it's time to warm up and relax at Carson Hot Springs Resort. Since the late 19th century, visitors have sought this natural hot springs for its healing and therapeutic properties. The water naturally flows from the spring at temperatures of 121 degrees and is cooled to create a variety of temperatures. Guests can lounge and soak in one of the resort's three outdoor pools, that range between 95-104 degrees year-round. Or, head to one of the 10 private hot baths that range from temperatures of 95 degrees to 110 degrees. The Resort also offers an outdoor patio with a 400-square-foot covered area and cold-water drench shower. For more information, visit carsonhotsprings.com.

Try a Trifecta

Looking for a more laid-back itinerary with minimal driving? Try the Carson City Trifecta: Carson Hot Springs Resort, Shoe Tree Brewing Company, and Sassafras Eclectic Food Joint. All three businesses share a parking lot, so it's an easy walk to make the rounds. As for the order, well that's up to you, but of course we have a suggestion.

First, you could enjoy a restorative soak in the soft waters of the Hot Springs. Then, head over to Shoe Tree Brewing Company for a pint of something local, such as the award-winning Wicked Shifty IPA. Finish it off with a meal at the inventive yet comforting Sassafras Eclectic Food Joint. From Cajun Mac & Cheese to Asian Chicken Tacos to Muffuletta, there's a dish for every taste.

Or, you could drink, then dip, then eat. Or eat, then drink, then dip. There's no wrong way to do it, except to miss this uniquely Carson City experience.

No matter the season, there's always a way to make the most of a day in Carson City.

ARTS & CULTURE

WHERE ART IS A BREWIN'

Brewery Arts Center offers year-round events, exhibits and performances

In 1975, a group of artists purchased the historic Carson Brewing Company building and turned it into a community gathering space for artists. Today, the Brewery Arts Center spans two city blocks and includes a 250-seat performance hall in historic St. Teresa Catholic Church, a sculpture park, the Nevada Artistis Association Gallery and an outdoor amphitheater.

"We try and honor our past while embracing and engaging modern artists and audiences with fun activities and innovative programming," says Gina Lopez Hill. the center's executive director.

Each year, the Brewery Arts Center hosts about 100 events and performances including theatre, live music, dance, and more. Many of these events are free.

There's always something happening, there's never a weekend when there's not an event or not something to do."

The center's education department offers classes in painting, sculpting, drawing, pottery, photography, jewelry making, theater, improvisation, dance and music.

"There's always something happening," Hill says. "There's never a weekend when there's not an event or not something to do."

In the summer, the Brewery Arts Center's campus comes alive with a 10-week outdoor concert series that draws bands such as The Wailers and Big Bad Voodoo Daddy. "The goal of it is to build the social fabric of America through the power of free live music," Hill says. "It is a community-building event using fantastic music as a vehicle." In 2020, the concert series is scheduled every Saturday night between June 6 and August 15. Between 2,000 and 3,000 people tupically attend.

"It's become quite the thing to do," Hill says.

In addition to performances, classes, and exhibits, the center also includes an Artisan Shop, where locals and visitors can find art unique to Carson City. The shop displays and sells pieces from about 25 local artists. It also sells handmade, artisan Moondance chocolates. "They are the most wonderful chocolates and are made right here in our kitchen," Hill says.

To keep abreast of all the center's happenings, Hill recommends visiting the organization's website at breweryarts.org.

Art isn't just for museums or galleries in Carson City. It's for the streets, the walls and the sidewalks, too.

"Our philosophical overview is that creation, education and relation are three elemental components in building strong public arts programming," says Mark Salinas, the director of the city's arts and culture department and a board member of the Nevada Arts Council. "These are, in fact, the same shared fundamental efforts in building a thriving community that people want to live in or a community that people want to visit and then relay the magnetism of that experience to family and friends."

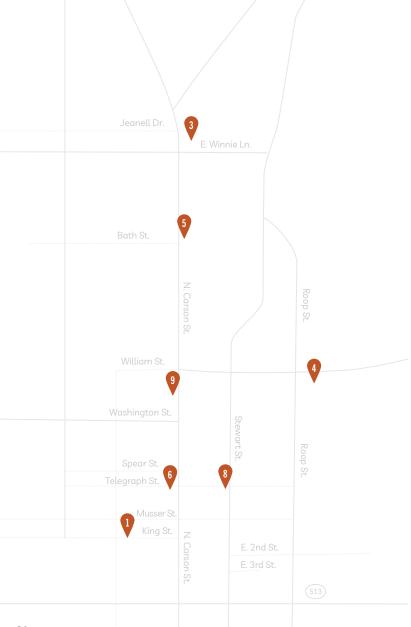

These efforts are on large-scale display with some of the public art throughout the city. Find these nine unique pieces to check out during your visit.

IN THE SHADOWS

For the last 27 years, the Carson City Ghost Walk has been a supernatural tradition combining history, theater and spooky spirits that haunt the capital city.

"In the Victorian era there was a movement called Spiritualism, which isn't a religious movement as much one where people can contact the dead," said Mary Bennett, founder of the Carson City Ghost Walk.

Bennett channels Mary Curry, widow of Carson City founder Abraham Curry. The Widow Curry explores communicating with her husband who passed away in October 1873.

Evening tours start in June and run through the summer, closing with a daytime event in October. Guests stroll past historic haunted homes on the west side as the folklore is narrated along the way. For the special October walk guests meet at McFadden Plaza and proceed on a two-hour walking tour where they enter historical homes and are treated to more of Carson City's lingering spirits of past centuries and meet characters along the way. Tours are family-friendly. The theme changes every year, ensuring a reimagined experience for everyone.

Some of the open homes and buildings along the tours include:

- The Prang House Originally built in Dayton, NV, the house was moved to this site in Carson City. The house is famous for resident Louis Prang, "The Father of the American Christmas card."
- The Bliss Bungalow Built in 1914 by John Chartz, who was the District Attorney. There is a time capsule that was placed in the columns in 2005.
- The Brewery Arts Center Built in 1874 by the Carson Brewing Company, producer of Tahoe Beer. The building has been transformed into an arts center.
- The Bliss Mansion Duane Bliss built this house in 1879. It has 15 rooms, nine marble fireplaces and is built of clear sugar pine and cedar from The Tahoe Carson Lumber Company. It is now a private residence.
- The Governor's Mansion Built in 1909. Denver Dickerson was the first Governor to live here with his wife Una, who was the first Governor's wife to birth a child in the mansion. It continues to host community events (and spirits).

The west side of Carson City was settled in the late 1850s at the beginning of the largest silver rush in history. It was a time of great prosperity and discovery as Nevada became the Battle Born State.

Learn about the supernatural stories that have been passed down through generations. You may cross paths with a Lady in White along the way.

SHOPPING IN THE CAPITAL CITY

Carson City's diverse shopping scene is reflective of the city's diverse culture and deep historical roots. The downtown shopping district is teeming with eclectic, locally owned boutiques where you're sure to find something to suit your tastes.

Because of the Carson City's western history, there are a number of antique shops that sell authentic antique pieces—from furniture to decor, dishes and more. Aunt B's Vintage is located at 512 North Curry St. in a little blue Victorian cottage. Here, you'll find an ever-changing selection of vintage and handmade goods ranging in styles. Just up the street, at 114 North Curry St., you'll find Abell House Antiques. Abell House has been in business for more than 20 years, collecting and selling rare antique finds. Nothing here is run of the mill, making Abell House the perfect place to go if you're looking for unique pieces.

Hanifin's Art & Antiques, located at 210 N. Carson St, is the largest antique shop in northern Nevada. Hanifin's boasts more than 9,000 square feet of antiques, artworks and other collectibles to peruse. This shop features antiques from across Europe from the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries.

Bookworms and literature lovers should head to Morley's Books, located in the historic Sweeney Building at 210 West King St. Morley's began as an online retailer in 2006, but the brick and mortar location was established in 2012. Morely's specializes in buying and selling rare, unusual and gently used books. You'll find books of all genres at Morley's, making it a great place to peruse during your Carson City adventure.

If you're looking for a mixture of antique treasures and modern goods, head to Due Sorella (Italian for "two sisters") at 202 North Curry St. Shopping at Due Sorella is an experience like no other. The shop sells a constantly changing mix of antique and new furniture, accent pieces, flatware, linens, jewelry, clothing and more. You may also meet the shop's pets, Sweet Pea the bunny and Lucy and Ricky, the two doves. To find a great gift for yourself or anyone in your life, head to the Purple Avocado at 904 North Curry St. The Purple Avocado has been voted the best gift shop in Carson City, and when you visit you'll understand why. The shop sells gifts for people of all ages and all tastes.

To find a souvenir from your Nevada getaway, swing by the Nevada Day Store, located inside the Carson City Visitor Center office at 716 North Carson St. The Nevada Day Store sells apparel and more to help you remember your trip.

Stacey Montooth, the executive director of the Nevada Indian Commission.

Going to work every day on the Stewart Indian School grounds is a surreal experience for Stacey Montooth, the executive director of the Nevada Indian Commission.

"I have a view of a beautiful pine tree. The mountains are amazing. It's so tranquil," Montooth says. "Yet, I can't overlook the fact that this place had such a dark history."

For 90 years, the Stewart Indian School served as the only off-reservation Indian boarding school in Nevada. In 1890, the Bureau of Indian Affairs established the school as a part of the American Indian boarding schools project, a program that removed children from their families in an attempt to eradicate American Indian culture.

Children and youth from Nevada, California, Arizona, and New Mexico representing 200 tribes were relocated to schools like the Stewart Indian School, where they were forbidden to speak their native languages or dress in traditional garb.

"Every aspect of American Indian life in the state of Nevada is impacted by Stewart, and there's not a Paiute, Shoshone, or Washoe who doesn't have a link to the school," Montooth says.

The Stewart Indian School operated from 1890 until 1980. During those 90 years, the campus grew to include 63 buildings, most built by students learning stone masonry from their teachers, including

Every aspect of American Indian life in the state of Nevada is impacted by Stewart, and there's not a Paiute, Shoshone, or Washoe who doesn't have a link to the school"

Hopi stonemasons. At one time, the school had a 10,000-gallon swimming pool and a platform for the Virginia & Truckee Railroad.

Today, the Stewart Indian School is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Montooth's connection to the school goes deep. Her uncle, a Vietnam veteran, ran the school's infirmary in the early 1970s. Her aunt went to the school as a teenager in its later years. Her 93-year-old grandmother, who is still alive, was brought to the school when she was four years old.

"My grandmother was raised in an institution," Montooth says. "She didn't have her family. She didn't have her brothers or sisters around the dinner table or aunties to tuck her in at night. She was one of the thousands of young people who were rounded up by representatives of the federal government. Kidnapped, if you will."

The stories of American Indians like Montooth's relatives are part of the recently renovated Stewart Indian School Cultural Center and Museum, located in the former administration building.

"This historic building is coming back to life," Montooth says. "The stories of the students, the alumni, and their families will be stored and shared within those walls. There's so much value in that. Everything in it is as told by our students. You cannot find a more authentic reflection of the history and the impact of the Stewart Indian School."

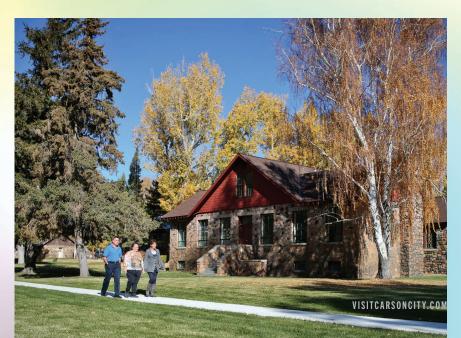

In May of 2020, the school plans to host a grand opening.

"Our traditions are that come spring, you always have huge gatherings, you have huge ceremonies," Montooth says. "Spring is the time of renewal."

Before the grand opening, the museum and cultural center are open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. For a full list of hours and events, visit stewartindianschool.com.

Montooth encourages everyone to visit the school.

"The history of The Great Basin, the history of Nevada, the history of the United States is not complete without the knowledge of the Indian boarding schools," Montooth says. "To be a well-rounded, civic-minded citizen, you have to know about the federal government's intentions, their actions, and of course, the ramifications. There is no place on earth to get a better account."

NEVADA DAY WEEKEND

Every year, Nevadans proudly celebrate the state's admission to the Union on October 31, 1864.

Officially dubbed Nevada Day, it is the largest statehood celebration in the nation. This traditional weekend includes a large parade downtown, hot air balloons, Beard Contest, and a Championship Rock Drilling Competition, among numerous other wild, fun-filled activities.

The true focal point of this historic event is the Nevada Day Parade, which has been hosted in Carson City since 1938. The parade celebrates Nevada's heritage, with the community saluting the state's past and looking ahead to its future. From unique floats including a house shooting flames and a 90 foot Sea Serpent, to dancing horses, marching bands, and shotgun yielding marauders, the parade is a must see extravaganza that should be on everyone's bucket list.

This year, the parade will be held on Saturday, October 31st, the actual date Nevada became the 36th state in the Union 156 years ago. This occurrence only happens every six to seven years, since the Nevada Day holiday was officially changed in 2000 to fall on the last Friday in October ensuring an action packed three-day weekend.

The theme for this year's Nevada Day Parade is "Historic Moments in Nevada". The parade is approximately 1.5 miles long, taking place down Carson Street, starting at the intersection of William Street and N. Carson Street, and ending at the intersection of Stewart Street and South Carson Street.

In addition to attending the parade and other activities mentioned above, visitors can also tour the Governor's Mansion, attend a free concert, take part in the annual Chili Feed, compete in the Nevada Day Classic Run/Walk, watch the American Indian Pow Wow, or catch the RSVP Nevada Day Carnival at Mills Park. The Nevada State Museum and the Nevada State Railroad Museum both offer free admission on that Friday and Saturday.

Cycling and libation enthusiasts looking to kick off Nevada Day weekend can join hundreds of riders in an eccentric, fun bike ride the Friday night before the Nevada Day Parade. The Blinky Man Ride is a night-time, biannual bikes-and-brews fest with participants dressed up in costumes and bikes lit in neon to hit Carson City's favorite watering holes. This free event is 21+ only.

FOOD & DRINK

TASTE THE REGION

Carson City's restaurants serve up homegrown flavors, ingredients, and hospitality

Whether you're dining at a cozy cafe, artisanal bistro, or long-time local favorite, when you eat in Carson City, you're tasting the community's locality, care and creativity when it comes to food.

"You can definitely taste the region," says Angela Bullentini, owner of Gather, which serves up American favorites with a farmto-table approach.

Bullentini, who grew up in Carson City, has experienced the city's restaurant renaissance first hand.

"We're expanding our options, that transformation in and of itself is huge," she says.

At Gather, the menu focuses on incorporating as many homegrown ingredients as possible.

"Our ability to access locally-grown foods has really exploded in just," Bullentini says.
"I'm really excited to be offering consumers this chance to eat local ingredients and a chance to give farmers a place to sell their local ingredients."

That farm-to-table approach plays a significant role in shaping the menus at Cucina Lupo and The Union, two Carson City restaurants owned by chef and restauranteur Mark Estee and partners Nick Meyer and Tommy Lynette.

"We have a vibrant restaurant community down here," Estee says. "We have some really great customers in Carson who love to eat out and who are really proud of supporting local."

At the Union and Cucina Lupo, diners can find dishes crafted with regionally grown ingredients such as Bently Ranch meats

"We have some really great customers in Carson who love to eat out and who are really proud of supporting local."

from Minden and fruits and vegetables from farms in the Great Basin Food Shed.

"The first thing you notice about Carson is how beautiful it is," Estee says. "This is a spectacular landscape with fields and livestock. A lot of the food grown in the area can be enjoyed at our restaurants in the region."

One of the region's most local food experiences can be found at a Basque restaurant, Estee says.

"There are Basque food and traditions, and there's also Basque dining, and it's really important to experience both because they're quintessential to Carson and Northern Nevada," Estee says.

Carson Farmer's Market

In addition to featuring local ingredients, many of Carson City's long-time favorite restaurants also highlight the community's deep roots.

For ten years, L.A. Bakery has focused on quality and customers, says manager Ali Arbabha.

"People in Carson, they love this place, and we love our customers," Arbabha says. "Food is something that has to come from your heart."

Heart is a key ingredient in one of the city's longest-standing restaurants, Comma Coffee.

Located in downtown Carson City, right across the street from the Legislature, this eclectic eatery serves up coffee, breakfast, lunch, and dinner, with as many fresh and organic ingredients as possible.

"We have an exposition kitchen, so you watch us make it," says owner June Joplin.

Now nearing its 20th year in business, Joplin says that Comma Coffee is a place where anyone can feel at home.

"I wanted to create a place where everybody wanted to come, where they felt comfortable, and they felt loved," she says.

FARM TO GLASS

Estate Distilleries, Breweries and Bottle Shops Capture the Flavors of Carson and Beyond

When people drink a glass of a locally brewed or distilled beverage, they're tasting more than its fermented grains. They're experiencing the essence of a place—its earth, its sunshine and its rain.

That's especially true at estate distilleries, a rare place where spirits grow from seed to sip, all on the same property.

From Carson City, visitors can drive to two estate distilleries in less than 90 minutes, Bently Heritage Estate Distillery & Public House in Minden and Frey Ranch Estate Distillery in Fallon.

"It's extremely special," says Lucas Huff, the director of brand advocacy for Bently Heritage. "Federal regulation actually doesn't have a definition of what estate means, but the state of Nevada does. There was actual legislation passed that defines it as 75% of the raw material you're using at the distillery is grown within the estate."

At Frey Ranch, about 90 minutes east of Carson City, operating as an estate distillery offers a high level of quality control, says Colby Frey, owner and whiskey farmer.

"There's a saying in the wine industry: you can't make good wine out of bad grapes," Frey says. "The same thing is true here. We grow 100% of the wheat, rye, barley, corn and oats that we use in all of our products. We even take it a step further, and we malt all our own barley right here on site. So, nothing leaves our possession, none of the ingredients. And we grow them all in a way that encourages quality, not quantity."

At Frey, visitors can tour the farm, the still house, barrelhouse, and tasting room on Saturdays. The family-owned farm pours vodka, gin, absinthe and a recently released bourbon.

At Bently Ranch, located about 30 minutes south of downtown Carson City, 100% of the grains used in its vodka, gin, whiskey and bourbon are grown on the more than 60,000-acre ranch.

"The original idea behind Bently Heritage was to be able to put a seed in the ground and grow it and have it be unique to that place," Huff says.

Currently, Bently has released several vodkas and gins while its whiskeys and bourbons rest and mature.

For those more inclined to drink a pint than a dram, head over to Shoe Tree Brewing Co., which uses grains from Bently in some of its brews. The most award-winning brewery in Carson City also serves up non-alcoholic sodas and ciders made in-house.

"One of our major goals was to bring worldclass beer to Carson City," says Paul Young, who owns Shoe Tree with his brother, Jeff. "We take the quality seriously."

The brothers and the Shoe Tree team also have fun with seasonal flavors and a rotating list of taps.

"We like to do new experimental things," Young says. "We have a wide variety for people to check out so that when they come in, there's usually something in their wheelhouse that they can enjoy."

Want to take a bottle back to the hotel room or Airbnb? Check out Just Brew It, which sells brewing supplies, fills growlers and offers a substantial selection of craft beers.

"We get a lot of world travelers who come through," says owner Trevor Rotoli. "When they come to town, they're looking to taste what's made here."

CHECKING-IN TO CHARM

Spend the night (or more!) in these unique and historic properties

In Carson City, visitors can explore the capitol and museums, take a ride on a one-of-a-kind locomotive, and enjoy year-round recreation from golfing to skiing to mountain biking to kayaking. After all that activity, most guests want a place to rest their weary, but happy, heads. For a stay beyond the typical hotel or motel, check out these two restored properties with a special place in the city's history.

Saint Charles Hotel

When it was built in 1862, the Saint Charles Hotel was advertised as "the most desirable and commodious first-class house in Carson." Today, the property still lives up to that lofty reputation.

Owners Mark and Jenny Lopiccolo, who purchased the property in 2004, brought modern-day amenities to the hotel while honoring its history as the longest, continuously-operated hotel in the state.

"Our guests love it," Jenny says. "They love the history of it. We're the same way. When we travel, we would want to stay somewhere like this. So, we keep that in mind when renovating the rooms. We ask, 'What would we love to stay in?'"

That question, and its answer, inspired the Lopiccolos to carefully renovate and bring new plumbing, electrical, flooring, ceilings and fixtures to the property. In total, the Saint Charles Hotel has six rooms available for nightly, weekly or monthly stays—five large suites and a one-bedroom. Each includes a kitchenette. Jenny designed all the rooms while Mark, a licensed general contractor, made her vision come to life. "A lot of love goes into each room," Jenny says.

If guests want to see what the lodgings were like in the 1860s, the Lopiccolos preserved one of the original four-foot by eight-foot rooms.

"We used one of the original glass doors, and we furnished it with antiques from the period, so people can take a peek back in time."

In addition to the modern features and beautiful design, guests also appreciate the hotel's location on Carson Street, across from the Nevada State Legislative building.

"They love, love, love the location because they can walk to restaurants and galleries and shops and across the street is the Capitol park," Jenny says. "Our guests from out of town really enjoy staying in the heart of downtown."

Bliss Bungalow

Groups or families looking for a home base to explore Carson City and its surrounding areas would feel right at home in the Bliss Bungalow. Built in 1914, the wholly remodeled five-bedroom, five-bathroom house is perfect for a more extended stay. The house can accommodate 10 adults and even a few more children, says Joyce Harrington, who runs the property and renovated it 15 years ago.

"As a group, you've got your common areas, your living area, kitchen and porch, but everybody can retreat to their own room with their own bath," says Harrington, "So, it's very comfortable."

While Harrington modernized the home in 2005, she kept its arts and crafts style intact, along with the original fir floors, pulley windows, pine moldings and high ceilings. Much of the decor is vintage.

The home's location is also ideal for Lake Tahoe vacations. "People don't realize you can be on the slopes in a half-hour from Carson City," Harrington says.
